

CONFERENCE ANNOUNCEMENTS

The WINDY CITY SYMPOSIUM Summer Symposium in Real Analysis XXXII

WHEN: June 10-14, 2008 WHERE: Chicago State University, Chicago, IL

Chicago State University, the National Science Foundation, and the Real Analysis Exchange will host the Summer Symposium in Real Analysis XXXII. In addition to the usual symposium lectures and problem sessions, we will use this opportunity to highlight the work of Cliff Weil and to honor his contributions to our discipline and the international community of real analysts. For online registration, see:

<http://www.stolaf.edu/people/analysis>

The program includes hour long talks by:

- Zoltán Buczolich (Budapest)
- Mike Evans (Lexington)
- Hajrudin Fejzic (San Bernardino)

In addition to the principal lectures, we have a number of slots set aside for twenty minute talks. Young researchers are particularly encouraged to present their work.

We have applied to and received funding from the National Science Foundation and several private foundations to help defray the costs of this meeting.

Individual questions concerning conference details may be addressed to the Conference Director, Paul Musial, at 773-995-2144 or email at pmusial@csu.edu.
