The American

Mathematical Monthly

Beginning with Volume XX (January, 1913), the AMERICAN MATHEMATICAL MONTHLY will be in charge of an Editorial Board consisting of representatives of nine supporting institutions, together with B. F. FINKEL, founder of the MONTHLY and editor since its inception in 1894.

The supporting institutions are Colorado College and the Universities of Chicago, Illinois, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Indiana, and Iowa. The editorial representatives are FLORIAN CAJORI, H. E. SLAUGHT, G. A. MILLER, E. R. HEDRICK, W. H. BUSSEY, W. C. BRENKE, C. H. ASHTON, R. D. CARMICHAEL, and R. P. BAKER.

It will be the editorial policy of the MONTHLY to appeal especially to the great body of teachers of mathematics in the collegiate and advanced secondary fields. The animating spirit of this reorganization is the conviction that such a journal is needed not only to direct attention to questions of improvement in teaching in these fields, but also to foster the development of the scientific spirit among large numbers who are not now reached by the more technical journals. The MONTHLY will continue to publish original papers. But increased attention will be given to pedagogical and historical questions of interest and value to teachers of collegiate mathematics. Thus, for example, the new volume, beginning in January, will contain in serial form the latest researches of Professor CAJORI on "The History of the Logarithmic and Exponential Concepts."

Notwithstanding the enlargement in size, the price of the MONTHLY will remain only $2.00 per annual volume of 10 numbers with 50 cents additional for delivery in foreign countries. Single numbers 25 cents each. Back numbers and volumes for recent years can be supplied at the same rate. An index of volumes I–XIX will soon be issued.

Orders and subscriptions should be made payable to THE AMERICAN MATHEMATICAL MONTHLY and sent to the Treasurer B. F. FINKEL, Springfield, Mo.

Articles for publication and official correspondence should be addressed to the Managing Editor, H. E. SLAUGHT, 5548 Monroe Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
